

Bethlehem Area School District 2007 Report Card

No Child Left Behind (NCLB) Information: In January 2002 the U.S. Congress passed a new federal education law called, No Child Left Behind (NCLB). NCLB requires the state, school districts, and individual schools to meet specific achievement targets in math and reading. The achievement targets for Pennsylvania this year are 54 percent of the students proficient in reading and 45 percent of the students proficient in mathematics. All students must meet these targets, including the following populations: major ethnic groups, special education students, limited English proficient students, and low-income students. In addition, at least 95 percent of the students enrolled in schools must participate in the state assessments (PSSA), and schools must show improvement in attendance rates (for elementary/middle schools) and graduation rates (for high schools). Collectively these targets are known as Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP). This legislation also mandates that school districts create a report card which indicates adequate yearly progress for each school within the district. This district report card serves that purpose.
